

Hilti again ranks among top employers

Schaan (FL), April 16, 2015 – Hilti ranks 2nd in the latest Great Place to Work competition. This puts Hilti among the best employers of 2015 in Liechtenstein and Switzerland. Hilti received the award in the category of large companies.

“Receiving a top result for the fourth year running is a true confirmation of Hilti’s corporate culture, as our employees’ opinions receive the strongest rating in the assessment,” says Sabine Krauss, Head of Global Human Resources. “Our working environment is characterized by responsibility, freedom and trust; our teams are highly motivated and work at a high performance level. This is the basis for our corporate success,” added Krauss.

The international Great Place to Work Institute (GPTW), which focuses on research and consulting, carried out its employer study in Switzerland for the seventh time. The primary emphasis of the assessment is a comprehensive employee survey that centers on the topics of trust, credibility, respect, fairness and team spirit in the workplace. A total of 600 Hilti employees were randomly selected to complete the assessment. The topics of corporate culture, employee orientation and information, hiring practices and cooperation are also analyzed. A total of 95 companies of various sizes and sectors participated in this year’s GPTW assessment in Switzerland.
